

International/Transnational Crimes

Origins, Investigation, and Punishment

Goal

The ESC Summer School works to bring together doctoral students of the ESC with students from other universities which provide doctoral degrees in forensic science or criminology for a short, cross-disciplinary session filled with opportunities to learn new information, practice their communication skills, and gain new skills which will facilitate personal and career growth. The aim of the program is to assist PhD students in developing the skills needed to successfully conduct their research and to prepare them for their professional career, as well as allowing them to build their professional and peer-support network. These objectives are achieved by offering specialized workshops and activities promoting active participation, engagement, and opportunities to improve.

Content

- Invited speakers (to be announced) will give talks about their areas of expertise
- Career professionals and university support staff will provide an array of workshops meant to provide both specialized and general skills useful for your professional development
- Participating students will share their research progress using oral presentation, video capsules, or posters to gain valuable scientific communication skills
- Group discussions will allow participants to ask questions and address topics which are personally relevant
- Additional activities such as a woodland hike and gala dinner will provide fun ways to socialize as well as gain exposure to professional etiquette expectations

When

From Monday, August 28th to Thursday, August 31st 2023

Where

Victoria Hotel and Residence, Villars-sur-Ollon, Switzerland

Registration

Registration and abstract must be submitted here :

<https://www.unil.ch/summerschools/esc> by May 19th 2023

Scholarship

A limited number of scholarships will be awarded to foreign students to cover the cost of lodging. Intent to request a scholarship must be included in the registration to be considered.

The number of participants will be limited – apply online today!

